次の英文は、高校生のKazumiが英語の授業で書いた作文です。①～⑥に答えなさい。

In December last year, I had my 17th birthday, and my family members gave me some presents. My father gave me a new guitar, and my brother gave me a new tennis racket. When I opened the box from my mother, I found there was a picture book in it. I thought picture books were for little children and didn't think I would get one from her, so I wasn't (あ) about it. My mother said to me, "You may wonder why the present from me is a picture book. But I (い) to / it / want / read / you). You will like it after finishing it."

That night, I tried to read the book before going to bed. It was so interesting that I couldn't stop reading it. The present changed my opinion of picture books, and then I became interested in (う) them.

Last month, my brother came to my room and showed me a website about an event. It was about picture books and would be held the next weekend. I didn't have any plans for that weekend, so I decided to go to (え) the event. At the event, there were so many people, and I learned that picture books were loved by many adults. There were many kinds of picture books from around the world, and we enjoyed reading them. Also, a staff member read some books to us, and we enjoyed that. In the afternoon, a writer came to the event to tell us about her job, and we were also able to learn how to write good picture books from the writer. Everything at the event was really interesting.

The writer said to us, "Many people think picture books are only for children, but they have (お) some good points for adults, too." After that, she told us about some of them. For example, the world in picture books is usually safe and peaceful, so we can relax if we go into the world of picture books. Also, picture books usually don't have many words, so we imagine a lot when we read them. We can improve our imagination, a skill which may help us at work.

After the event, I thought, "Picture books are more interesting than I thought. I hope more people, especially adults, will read them." So, I started to work as a member of a volunteer group three weeks ago. Most members of the group are students, and we read picture books and show how good they are to people in different places. For example, we visited a hospital in our city to do volunteer work last weekend, and we are going to do it at an event at the city library this weekend. When we are doing volunteer work, I sometimes feel (か) to find no adults listening to us. However, there are some adults who told me that they would read picture books. I'll continue to work hard in the group.
